Supplies:

- felt, colors are up to you
- a strip of felt, 1/2 inch wide by 2 1/2 inches long
- embroidery thread (or regular thread)
- needle
- glue gun
- gold paint (to paint tree top square 'star')

Cut all the felt squares, the amount and size from top to bottom:

- 2 squares - 1/2 inch (for the star)
- 6 squares - 1/2 inch
- 6 squares - 3/4 inch
- 6 squares - 1 inch
- 6 squares - 1 1/4 inches
- 6 squares - 1 1/2 inches
- 6 squares - 1 3/4 inches
- 6 squares - 2 inches
- 4 squares - 1 3/4 inches

Then start stacking them up. Begin with the bottom (4 - 1 3/4") and stack through to the top (6 - 1 1/2"). I arranged my colors so none of the same were next to each other but again, that part is up to you. Run a needle and thread through the center of each of the stacks until all are strung.

Add a dot of glue to the brown piece of felt and wrap it around the thread and itself, adding another dot of glue to keep the strip in place.

To finish up, add a dot of glue to one of the two star squares and sandwich them together, making sure to secure the end of the thread in between the pieces. This step not only holds the stack in place but is where the hanging loop is created. Then arrange the felt pieces, off setting the pieces from each other.
